

Guideline for product use

The contents of KI Group's digital and printed products are protected by copyright. Their use is subject to legal provisions and the terms of the respective subscription.

In the following, you will find exemplary instructions for the use of individual products.

“Internal” refers to the natural or legal person being the contractual partner of KI Group with regard to the product, as well as to their direct employees.

“Third parties” are all natural or legal persons that are not contractual partners of KI Group with regard to the product.

“Third parties” also include all foreign, parent, sister and subsidiary companies of the contracting party.

Please note: User accounts are always personal accounts. It is not allowed to share access to them between several employees, not even internally.

This non-exhaustive list is meant for guidance only. The respective contractual conditions are binding.
